

THE WINNER'S GOOD RACE.

each 20 to 1. Run off—Ten to seven on Ramiro, against the Winner, even money.

WALLACE'S THREE-YEAR-OLD WINS AFTER A ROUSING DEAD HEAT.

Ramiro Was Favorite for the Race, but Favor's Son Took the Ramapo Handicap. The Winner Wins the Hancocks Stake. Two Races for the Messrs. Boyle.

Nobody could complain of the quality of the sport at Morris Park yesterday. The Winner and Ramiro running a dead heat for the Ramapo Handicap, the former proving the better staying in the deciding heat, while the Morris two-year-old, The Friar, won the Hancocks Stake. Both events were well contested, and the 6,000 persons present saw some rattling good sport. The weather was all that anybody could desire, and Superintendent German had the track both safe and fast.

Merry Prince, the Blenton Stable's candidate, shared the honors of favoritism in the Ramapo Handicap with The Winner, the other contestants being held at long prices. Riley Granman, although barred from attending the races, sent a heavy commission on The Winner, and Will Wallace, who owns the son of Favor and Happy Sally II, told his friends that the colt would take a lot of beating. Taral and Shanoa, the respective riders of The Winner and Ramiro, had a good-natured chaffing match before the horses went to the post. When the start was made Dr. Grimes, Merry Prince, and Voley raced head and head to the turn, where they were joined by The Winner. The last named took up the running in the stretch, but was almost instantly challenged by Ramiro, on whom Sloan had ridden a patient race. Dr. Grimes was third, Merry Prince fourth. Once more his utter inability to hold weight.

When it came to a question of dividing the stake both owners were willing to split the money. To Sir Sloane he said, "I am not so confident he could win the run-off." Wallace then wanted to have the deciding heat run after the first race, but Sir Sloane said, "No, we will have no clause, and speculation began at once on the run-off. For this Ramiro was the odds-on favorite, with every mutiny offered against him. The Winner, however, had a clause permitting Ramiro to make the running a good length and a half before the Kentuckian could get to the street. The two colts were going headlong, but Taral had a handful of wraps, and Sloane was uneasy when he saw the sons of Favor moving up to his side. Finally, Voley, racing hard, got to the Winner, and when the Kentuckian challenged the California in dead earnest the war whoop of North Carolina resounded through the incense of smoke, and the race was on. It was no use. The Winner coming on and landing the stake by two lengths. The time for both was 1:45. The Winner quite a stayer, as he carried 120 pounds.

Typhoon II was the odds-on favorite for the Hancocks Stakes, and the heaviest speculators were on the side of the colt. Sir Sloane, who was the most popular jockey in the country, was through, no fault of Mr. Pettigall, as the son of Toppagall was perfectly straight when the gate went up. He did not have to go far to find a lead, and he had to whip him away from the post. The field had opened a gap of six lengths before Typhoon II got around and then the chances of victory were over. In the next three heats The Friar, Storm King, and Rhodes were sprung away for dear life. Winged Foot put in a furious run, and the colts were given their heads. Littleton then set the pace along in dead earnest, and the big chestnut smothered his field, galloping home three lengths before the finish. The Friar was second, and the colt was no use. The Winner coming on and landing the stake by two lengths. The time for both was 1:45. The Winner quite a stayer, as he carried 120 pounds.

Ramiro was considered the best gelding in the country, and was odds-on favorite to beat the other madison three-year-olds he met in the opening dash on the Withers mile. Taral and Shanoa, the two leading jockeys, tried to do the weight, and the speculators held the Preakness candidate favorite at $10 to 1. South Africa, from Adamo Br's stable, was second choice at 10 to 1, and Challenger next in demand at 3 to 1.
